

Scientists are using CRISPR to edit genes with incredible precision—potentially curing genetic diseases before they even appear. The future of medicine is getting very personal, very fast.